

Todd M. Begg

Partner

Todd is known in the courtroom for his drive and zealous litigation skills in advocating on behalf of his clients. Outside of the courtroom, he is an active lecturer on family law related matters and has previously spoken on custody, support and discovery in divorce actions for local and state bar associations as well as the Pennsylvania Bar Institute.

With more than two decades of Pittsburgh family law experience, founding partner Todd M. Begg's diverse background, rooted in psychology and sociology, provides a core for exceptional litigation in high-conflict divorce, custody and equitable distribution cases.

Skilled Analyst

Todd is adept at litigating cases dealing with issues of addiction, mental illness and abuse, and at analyzing the critical testimony of psychologists, social workers and other experts in these convoluted cases. He excels at divorces involving:

- Complex business valuation
- Death during divorce
- Child custody
- Property ownership among unmarried individuals

Community Advocate and Celebrated Leader

Todd passionately devotes himself to his community. Through volunteer work, coaching his children's teams and being involved in their activities, he gains appreciation for issues families face. A firm advocate for pro bono services, Todd donates time as a Neighborhood Legal Services Association pro bono protection from abuse attorney and volunteer pro se motions attorney. Todd's distinctive voice is often tapped by the legal community as an author and speaker.
